JONES... Old and New...

William Jones, born in Massachusetts on October 22, 1789, lived for a while in Buffalo, New York, before coming to Chicago in 1831 to work in real estate. In 1837, when Chicago incorporated, Jones was a justice of the peace.

Active in the formation of the city's common council, Jones set up a hardware business called Jones, King and Company.

He served as a member and as chairman of the board of school inspectors for eleven years, and in April, 1841, became president of the Board of Education. During three terms as president, he urged the idea of a definite plan of education for the school system and encouraged the education of every child — even little girls.

He saw the need of advanced education for men and women of the day, and worked toward the founding of the University of Chicago before his death in 1877.

An elementary school at 12th Street and Wabash Avenue was named for Jones in 1846, but it was soon moved to another site, and later was destroyed in the Chicago Fire.

In 1857 Jones established a $1,000 fund with interest to be applied to the benefit of the Jones school. The money was used to bring reference books, maps, globes, and textbooks for needy children — these were the first free textbooks in the public schools. (For years it was the only public school in Chicago where needy students had an adequate supply of materials.)

The present building was constructed in 1875. It served as headquarters for the Board of Education's vocational guidance office from 1913-1921. From 1934 until 1938 it was used by the Illinois Emergency Relief Commission for its educational program.

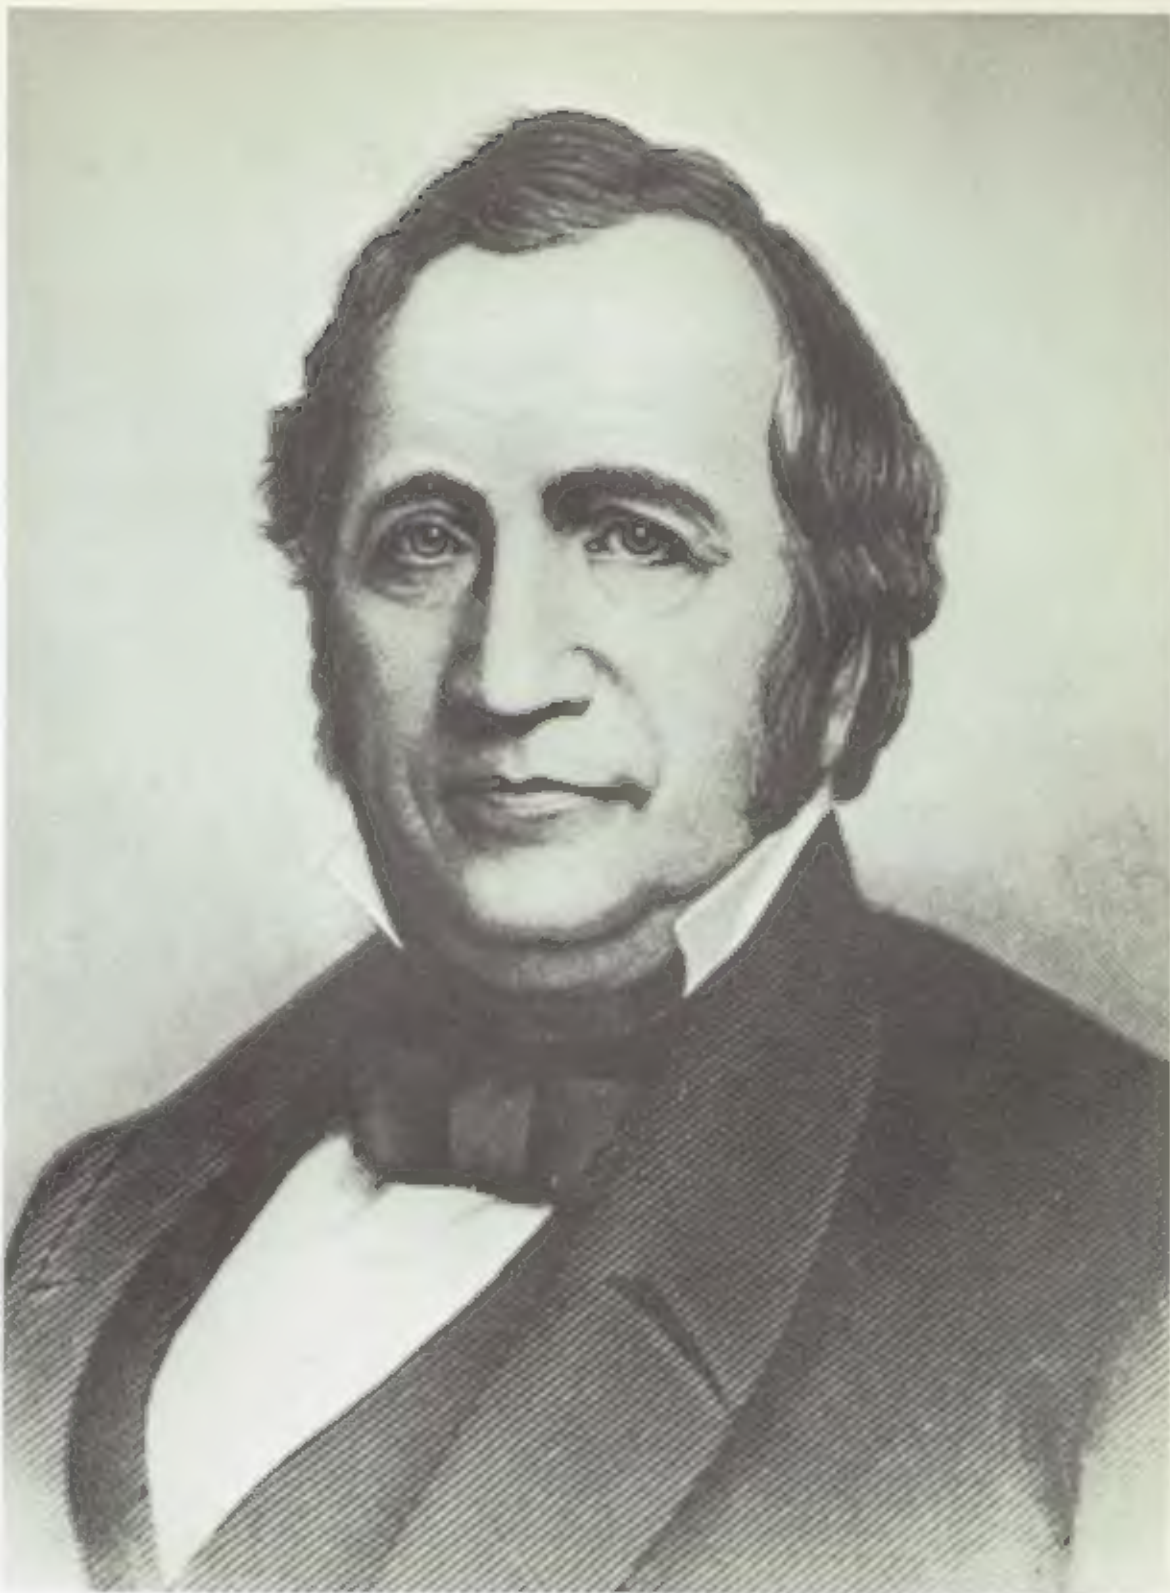

Finally, in 1938, the building was remodeled and equipped with the latest business machines and opened as Jones Commercial High School.

As of today, Jones High School enrolls 598 girls and three boys. It is not just a school for girls — before World War II, 40 per cent of the students were boys. The school is tuition free and draws students from all over the city for the junior and senior years, the extent of its program.

A three million-dollar building is under construction at the corner of state and Harrison streets to house the new Jones. The six-story facility will be completed by January, 1966, and a gymnasium will be built on the present site of the school.

The girl wearing the hat and carrying books is the symbol of Jones . . . Over 250 Chicago offices have participated in the co-operative work-study program.

We thank you, William Jones.

Farewell To A Building

Jones Commercial High School is on the threshold of a spectacular new future. The new Jones Building holds great promise for thousands of graduates, just as the old one did for the many, many students who left it years ago. As we say good-bye, we remember its history as one of the oldest of our city's schools.

Its beginnings were small and no Chicagoan of those days could ever have guessed the impact this building would have on his city. In 1858 William Jones, first president of the Board of Education from 1840-1848, donated $1000 to the City of Chicago stipulating that the interest should go toward purchasing books, slates, and maps for the indigent children attending the Chicago Public School #2 on Dearborn Street. A new school was built that year at 12th and Wabash and named after him — Jones School. In 1862 that was moved to Harrison and Clark. This building was burned in the Great Fire of 1871, and another building erected in 1873 at Harrison and Clark also burned in 1874.

Our present building at 607 South Plymouth Court was constructed in 1875 costing $65,297.68. Over a period of 90 years this structure housed thousands of students of all ages and at various levels. Rising 10 years after the Civil War when Chicago's population was less than half a million, the Jones school has lived through Chicago's greatest period of growth and expansion. It has been through three terrible wars, and lived through the technical and social revolutions of the 20th century.

In its early period as an elementary school, Jones served an immigrant population drawn to Chicago to work for the railroads and the packing industry. Not far from the Hull House where Jane Addams strove to alleviate the poverty and barbaric social conditions engulfing these people, the Jones school began to help its "indigent" students.

In 1896, Miss Gertrude E. English, principal, fearful of disease spreading throughout her school, gave free baths and medical attention to her students. In the basement she maintained a bath tub, medicine, and bandages and prepared for every situation.

In 1903 another principal, Miss Cora Caverno, formulated this rule: "Only a clean body absorbs learning." Every morning teachers chose students most in need of a bath and sent them to Mrs. Catherine Sullivan, "head scrub woman," who took care of their "sanitary renovation." According to the best American tradition, many of these youngsters of Jones early days became prominent citizens. Surely the most vociferous was "Bathhouse" John Coughlin, Alderman of the First Ward for almost 50 years. Recalling his school days in a Chicago Tribune article of December 9, 1906, titled "Chicago's Greatest School" he made this statement:

The reader can guess, perhaps, that I'm a Jones kid myself. I've followed the Jones School all around the First Ward. I've risen phoenix-like, from its ashes. When the Chicago Fire crossed the river that Sunday night at Polk Street, the Jones School was at Clark and Harrison streets, with the entrance doors on Clark. All my books were in the building, left over from the Friday night before . . . "the little wooden branch of the Jones School stood there without more than a little singeing around the edges although the main brick building was destroyed. You can't consider the First Ward in Chicago and leave out the Jones School.

Mr. Coughlin listed other Jones graduates prominent in Chicago life: F. W. Peck, builder of the Auditorium; Angelo Cella, Illinois state senator; Nyman Goldberg, perfecter of the calculating machine; Reverend Albert McCalla, Presbyterian minister; and George Gobet, a Mayor of Blue Island.

During these years, Chicago was changing tremendously, and it was only natural that the Jones school should follow this progress. As time passed, the city recovered from the Great Fire. New department stores and banks grew in the downtown area, forcing families to move farther north, south, and west. Chicago was building, through periods of financial panic, labor, and riots. Chicago and Jones, too, were changing. The Haymarket Riot of 1889, the Columbian Exposition of 1893, the Pullman

A sailor crowns the Jonesite queen of the prom in 1945.

Jones girls work for the Office Management Association of Chicago convention in 1948.

Strike of 1894, the Spanish-American War of 1898 — all the growing pains of a city and a country increased, while the Jones building stayed here on Plymouth Court.

By 1913, so few students attended the school that they were transferred, and Jones became the headquarters of the Vocational Guidance Office. Eight years later, the school for adults was moved to the Jones building. This program eventually developed into a continuation school which functioned there until 1933.

That, after so many years, seemed the end of the Jones school. Darkened, emptied of students, the old building so much a part of the Chicago scene seemed a relic of another age. Now, in the middle of a great Depression, the Department of Labor used it for the Public Works Administration records of Chicago's unemployed. Always it seemed a reflection of the social and economic conditions of the city.

And yet, its finest days were still ahead. In 1938, the Jones School came back to life. Realizing that 90% of high school graduates in that year did not attend college, businessmen felt Chicago needed a commercial public school. In that year, the Board of Education, headed by James B. McCahey, president, directed the Superintendent of Schools, William H. Johnson, to establish Chicago's first and only commercial high school in the old building at 607 Plymouth Court. The school completely remodeled, cleaned, painted, and restored, opened in February, 1938, with 512 eleventh grade pupils who transferred from 37 high schools. The new name on the door said JONES COMMERCIAL SCHOOL.

Because of its unique program and methods of instruction under faculty members who had both business and academic backgrounds, Jones graduates were exceptional from the very beginning. In 1940 the International Commercial Schools Contest was held in Chicago. Jonesites placed second and third in the 120-word shorthand test; third in machine transcription; and first, second, and third in bookkeeping. The school received a plaque designating it "Grand Champion, High School Division." Of the 234 graduates in the first graduating class, of January, 1940, 175 were placed in jobs in 6 weeks.

In 1942 Clarence B. Carey was appointed as director and under his leadership the following developments took place:

- The first Jones yearbook was published
- The first fashion show was presented
- The school flag was adopted
- The personality program was inaugurated

The follow-up employer's survey was begun

The grooming program was originated.

Bobby sox and babushkas were discarded

The physical education program was re-organized to include posture improvement.

As the years passed, and the success of the new program was proved, the demands for graduates increased. All through the war years of 1941-1945 the Jones building and its faculty received many calls for clerical help from Civilian Defense Agencies and the Treasury Department. Jones also contributed 124 boys and 10 girls to the armed forces 4 young men were killed in action

After the war, many more businessmen grew interested in the Jones program. In 1946, J. L. Kraft was the commencement speaker and began a tradition of annually presenting jade awards at graduation exercises for school services. In 1948, Aldens Inc. began donating a portable typewriter to the best typist in each class. Businessmen continued to show their interest in commercial education by forming the Jones Business Advisory Council in 1951.

Also, in that same year, Jones was the first school in the city to initiate the cooperative work program. More than 200 companies volunteered to participate in it. Under this plan students work half a day and attend school half a day; they receive both a salary and school credit.

Dorothy Bond, famed cartoonist for the Daily News and friend of the business girl, was a frequent visitor at Jones

Many changes took place within the building, and even outside it began to reflect new ideas. In 1954 the building was repainted, changing its color from red to gray. Over the years many new faculty members came to Jones, but a solid core remained. In 1956, the school's 18th anniversary Oscars were presented to teachers who had served on the staff for those years: Florence O'Brien, Lillian M. Foley, Ruth Thorning, Gerald O'Neill, and Stanley Franklin.

When Jones celebrated its 25th anniversary in 1963, the Board of Education recommended that the lots on Harrison and State streets be acquired for a new school building. Since that time all Jonesites have eagerly waited for the two new structures to appear. In the middle of a blizzard on November 20, 1964, Mr. Carey, Dr. Benjamin C. Willis, Mr. Frank M. Whiston, and Mr. E. G. Hubbell took shovels to break ground for the new Jones Commercial High School. Attended by outstanding leaders in both education and business, the ceremony proved again that Jones is an integral part, not only of the First Ward, as Mr. Coughlin declared so many years ago, but of the city itself. Since that date, construction has continued on the six-story classroom building and a two-story auditorium, cafeteria complex. When it is completed, the new building will enable Jones to double its enrollment and provide commercial training for thousands more young people.

Senator Douglas attended our school's twentieth anniversary celebration.

The late Cortez Peters, champion speed typist, amazed all with his skills.

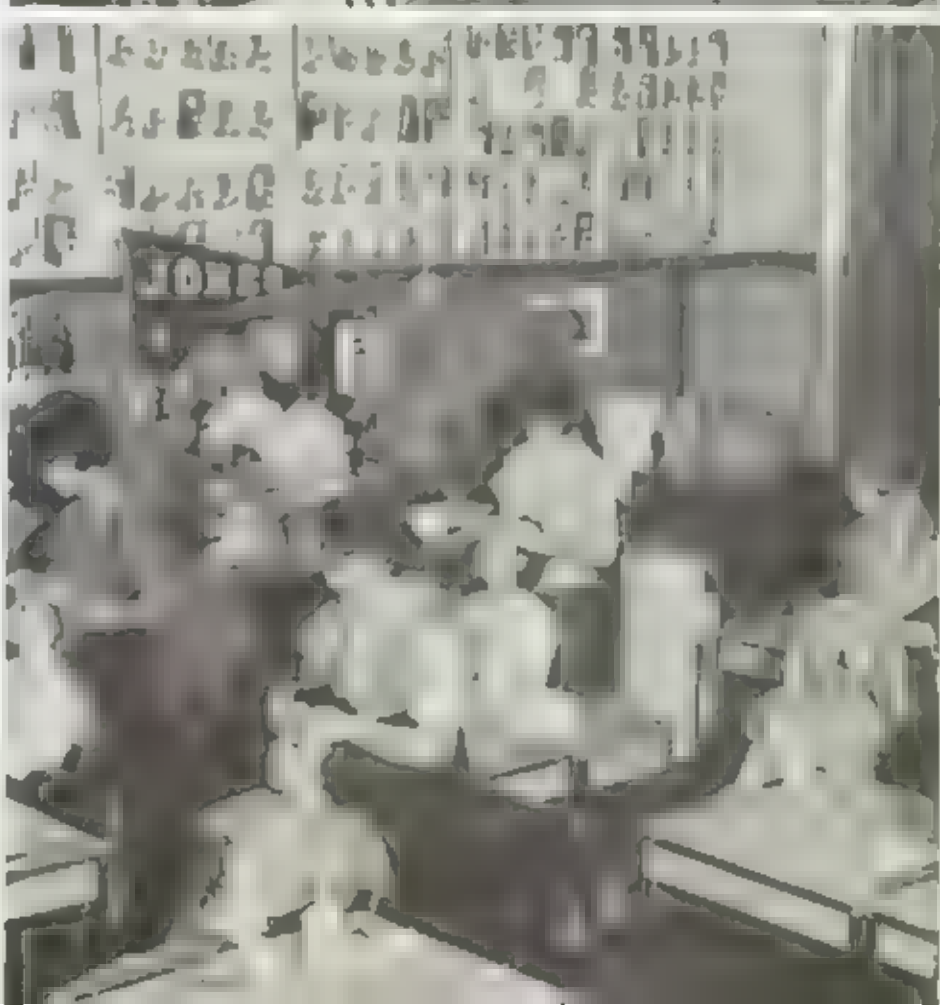

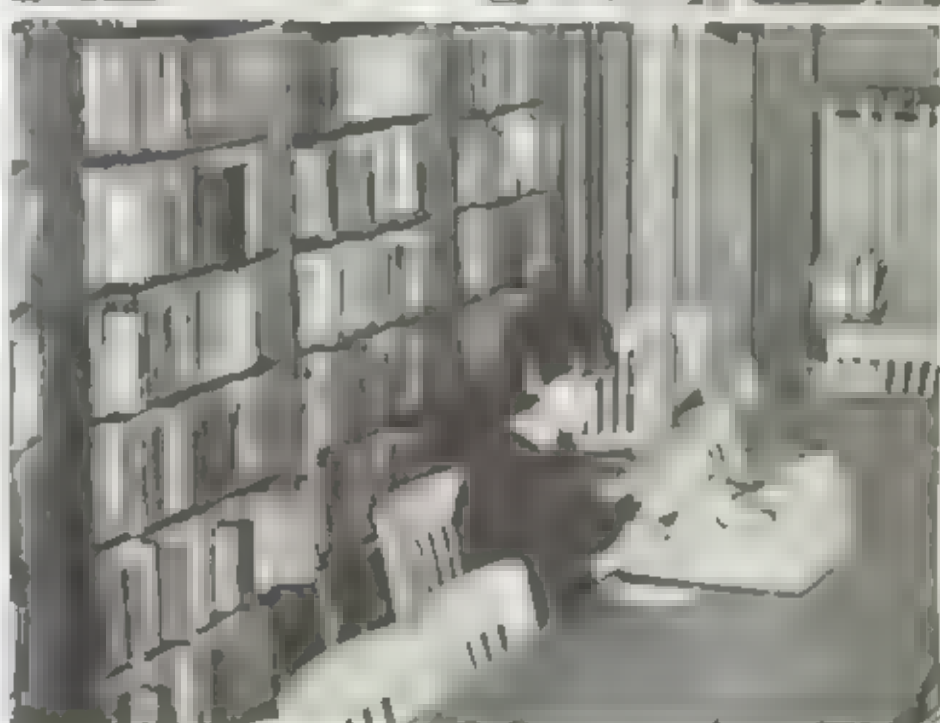

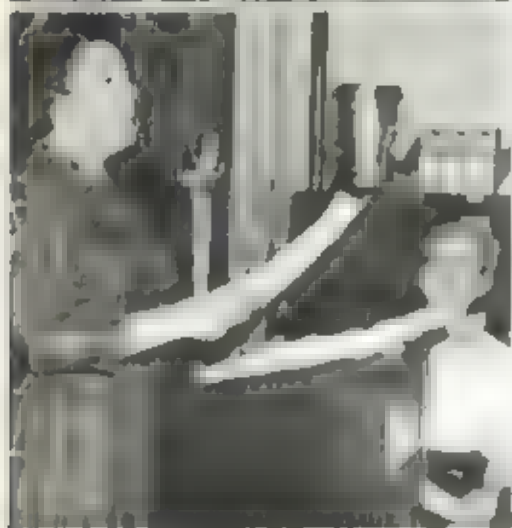

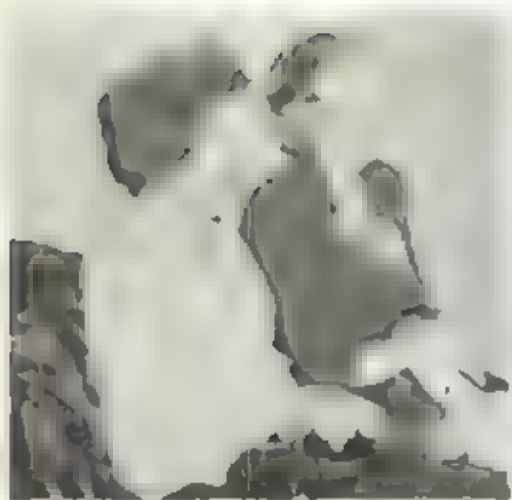

Though we'll love our new building, we'll miss our old one — with its "ROOMY OFFICE," "LARGE LIBRARY," and SALON STYLE Grooming facilities."

A LADY'S HERITAGE

A champion is leaving the Jones scene, undefeated, wearing a crown of the warmest and kindest wishes of all who knew and grew with her. We do not say goodbye because so much of her will remain with us, it will be as though she has never left.

She leaves us an aura of graciousness and gentility, yet with it a fighting spirit of truth and right and justice. She leaves us the memory of a soft, reassuring smile that lets us know things are not really so bad. She leaves us an outstanding example of tolerance, patience, and understanding, tempered in her own unique way with a most delightful sense of humor.

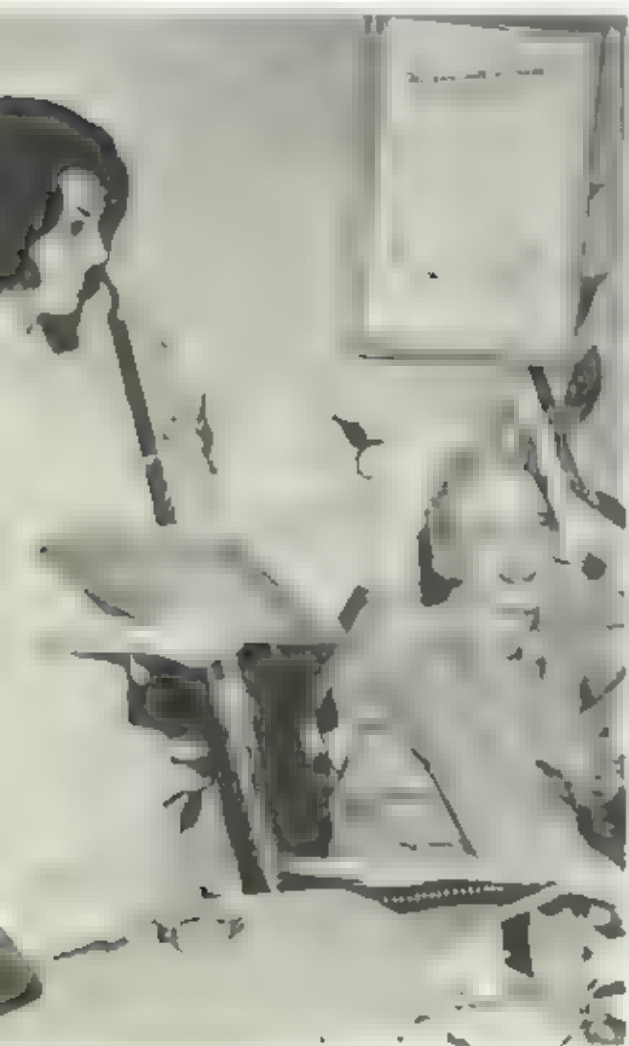

Above all, she leaves us with the living proof that any worthwhile accomplishment, even when one is endowed with a talent as great as hers, must consist, in the main, of hard, hard work. For these, and a myriad of other things, we say thank you, Miss Lillian Foley. God bless you.

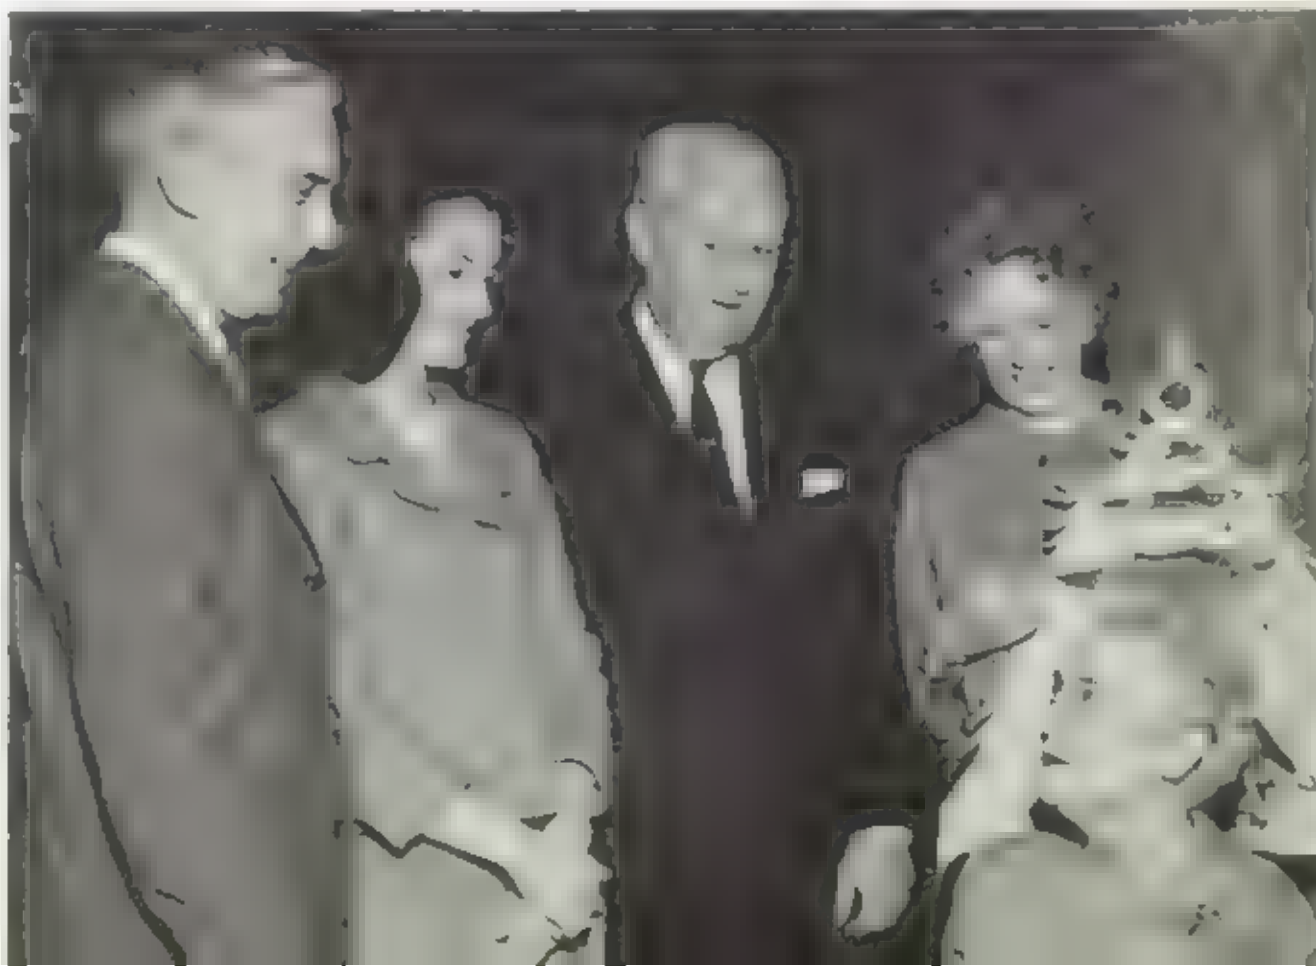

Surprise! "This is Your Life Miss Foley."

Our Glorious Past...

Our Farewell to a Building

CLARENCE B. CAREY
Director

For the past twenty-eight years, Jones Commercial High School has achieved virtual world-wide recognition for the excellence of its business education program.

This, in spite of the handicap of a venerable old school building dating back to the Chicago Fire of 1871.

While this old building is rich with memories of early Chicago, we shall be more concerned with the memories dating back to 1938, when Jones Commercial High School became a special entity of the Chicago Public School system.

Yes, the building was old; yes, the building had been remodeled and refurnished; yes, it represented an age of education long gone; yet, it managed to spawn the most modern public business education program in Chicago: new equipment, new approaches, more dedicated determination to succeed; but most of all, young people who adopted the slogan, "We don't have to, we choose to!"

This was the building which introduced the special breed that preceded the new breed — young people willing to sacrifice travel time downtown, and time for more intensive homework and to endure more rigorous discipline. While others became notorious juvenile delinquents, the Joneses became well groomed, well-mannered, well-trained, sustaining members of society.

Despite the wooden stairs, the four flights (sometimes five if you were in the basement), they rose to lady-like heights, smiling, poised Joneses with hats, heels, gloves and pert, businesslike hair-do's. There were boys, too, who became men of character and business acumen. This old building was their home — it wasn't an institution. It reflected their warmth, their enthusiasm, their seriousness of purpose, and most of all, their light-hearted laughter.

This old building saw the introduction of many innovations such as the personality program, the grooming program, the Oral Communications course, the business machines program and many others.

Space was limited and sometimes cramped but it generated intimacy which created in only two years the patterns, the friendships of a lifetime.

This building could never be old — it was always young. It will be forever young, even when the wreckers begin to demolish it, brick by brick.

We welcome our beautiful, new facilities, but not without sentimental sadness. We hope, only, that we can remain true to its tradition of competence, loyalty and humility.

The Sewing Club of Jones takes advantage of a popular hobby, and turns it into a profitable pastime. The 58 members find that all that is required is a desire to sew, for there are instructions available during the meetings.

Two major projects are specially sponsored each year—the Christmas Pageant and the Easter Show. This year a Sew-a-rama anticipating the summer and sports clothes was also added.

Shown here is the Easter dress and hat show. Budget-minded, the girls chose a pattern complementing them and were then to change it in at least three ways with accessories. In addition to their regular show, they modeled their outfits for the divisions for three days, each day a different way.

The Audubon Club That Wasn't

Some clubs are born great; some clubs achieve greatness, and some have greatness thrust upon them. So it was with the Audubon Club Greatness, in a manner of speaking, was thrust upon them, not by circumstances compelling, but rather by direct avian authority. The club had no elected officials, yet the Jones faculty, en toto, were active participants. There was no official membership roster; however, each and every student pursued the club interests with a passion. Indeed, even the Building Maintenance Personnel were enjoined. Impromptu gatherings were the norm rather than formally scheduled meetings. The club was hatched and disbanded within a week and left more unsettled bills in its wake than could ever be totaled. At the same time it soared to heights unparalleled in the history of Jones Commercial (about six stories, roughly speaking). It received considerable mention in the local metropolitan newspapers, and journalistic reports fluttered in from as far away as Florida.

The club resulted from an investigation which began with the discovery of a number of rusty nails found spread around the faculty parking lot. No one seemed to know how the nails were getting there, and such things as disgruntled students, neighborhood delinquents, and careless construction workers all checked out negatively. As the mystery deepened, sentinels were posted to watch the parking lot. Then, like a bolt from the blue (actually a nail), the case was solved.

An alert sentry was struck on the head by a falling nail, and upon gazing skyward, saw nothing save a lone pigeon lazily circling. The word was flashed through the school and the Audubon Club was born. All eyes turned to watch the pigeons, who were using the nails to build nests, naturally assuming, we suppose, as some of us have at one time or another, that this construction activity was strictly for the birds . . .

Publicity Club

Mrs. Bresnahan-Miss FitzGerald

Any day that you may pick up a metropolitan newspaper you are likely to read a story about the Jones Commercial High School. These stories emanate from the Publicity Club under the direction of Mrs. Bresnahan and Miss Maday. Miss FitzGerald has the same responsibility to the neighborhood newspapers. Because of the Publicity Club, the image of the Jones girl is kept in the local publications and constantly before her future employers.

Chorus

Mr. Albin

The Jones Choraleers are a group of choice singers. Each member is admitted on her desire to sing and on her past experience. All rehearsal time is after the school day, a fact which proves their devotion to good music. In addition to adding a musical touch to both the fashion and spring shows, the choraleers are often asked to perform outside of school

The Bowling Club

Mrs. McCaleb

This group meets every Wednesday at Marina Lanes, Marina Tower. Under the athletic eye of Mrs. McCaleb, Jonesites combine physical exercise and fun, while gathering Kraft points. The club also presents an opportunity for a display of sportsmanship as well as a chance for some great fun. The teams are divided into two divisions: red and blue. Red is for higher averages; blue, for lower

Jones A-GO-GO

Miss Leavitt

Under the guidance of Miss Leavitt this club numbers over 60 members and logs up more mileage in the course of a month than any other group. Their purpose is to "see" Chicago and so broaden their education and cultural horizons. They have toured the Sun-Times building, Marina City and the FBI, to name just a few of their tours. They have attended "Dr. Zhivago," "The Agony and the Ecstasy," "Years of Lightning, Day of Drums," to cite some of their movies

Library Club

Miss Thorning

Members of the Library Club have all had experience as library aides or as apprentice-aides. Girls who work with Miss Thorning in the library are members of this fine club. In addition to becoming more familiar with the world of books they are learning to practice the important personality traits of tact and courtesy.

Jonesite Business Staff

Mr. Franklin

The Jonesite business staff is comprised of competent representatives from each division. Their job includes securing subscribers for the yearbook, and offering these subscribers an opportunity to pay for their yearbook in installments or in full. All of the work is done during the first half of the division period.

Under the direction of Mr. Stanley Franklin the business staff has always been successful in fulfilling its obligations to the students and to the school.

Jonesite Editorial Staff

Miss Kennedy—Mrs. Murray

Members of the Jonesite editorial staff all possess loyalty, dependability, writing ability and an interest in their work. They must choose a theme, arrange and identify pictures, write copy, and type all the material that will be used in the yearbook. Tedious proof-reading must also be done by these girls.

Regularly scheduled meetings are held every Tuesday and Friday. All members receive a pin for two semesters of service.

The co-editors of the 1966 Jonesite are Mary Shrimplin and Julie Yuskus.

Jonesite Business Staff—Wanda Wiertel, Ingrid Oberth, Angelia Bell, Mirella Truh, Awilda Rios, Holly Baccus, Dee Grabow, Alice Zaragoza, Arlene Advan, Bernadette Kubaak, Theresa Shiola, Adelaida Estrada, Rochelle Wenchowski, Jeanne Guida, Mary Bishop, June Vana, Cathy Fronczak, Nancy Nawrocki, Pam Murray, Hilda Garza.

Future Business Leaders of America

Mrs. Kissane

Students maintaining an "E" average are eligible for membership in the Future Business Leaders of America, and each member receives an Order of the Owl pin, symbolizing high scholastic and leadership traits. If a member is on the honor roll for three semesters, he may graduate with a gold tassel, indicating his superior grades

Jones Reporter

Mrs. Bresnahan

All Jones reporters are ambitious and creative. They are always on the lookout for new and interesting material to be printed in the paper. Staff members cover social activities of the school, interview visitors, teachers, and students, and compose any article that may be of interest to readers.

The members work together and learn to improve techniques of writing. Pins are awarded to those who served two semesters.

Co-editors of the Jones Reporter are Sharon Bonkowski and Peter Ociepka.

Home Arts Club

Miss Maday

The Home Arts Club meets every other week on Thursday morning. A tour is taken at least once a month to show rooms, businesses and industries where members see furniture collections, model room settings, fabrics, floor coverings, decorative accessories, appliances, and cooking demonstrations.

The club aims to give future homemakers an understanding of traditions and trends in home furnishings.

The officers are: Jane Nibert, president; Marcia Miller, secretary; Linda Reed, treasurer.

Seated: Jane Nibert, Pete Ociepa, Marcia Miller. Standing: Ilona Rottlinger, Lynda Reed, Pamela Murray, Cathy Newton.

Future Secretary Association

Mrs. Spiecker

The Jones chapter of the Future Secretaries Association, the first of several groups, is sponsored by the Lake Shore Chapter of the National Secretaries Association. Members are secretarial students who are recommended for the club by their stenography and typing teachers. Meetings are held monthly at the IBM Corporation, where guest speakers tell the girls about good office habits.

The president of the chapter is Lillian Bagus and the vice-president is Rosalie Bosco.

Miss Touliou

Junior Red Cross representatives are elected every semester from each division to meet with their sponsor and plan special projects in connection with the American Red Cross. During the Christmas and the Easter seasons, the girls undertake various charitable activities. These girls enjoy making things for others and at the same time improve their own creativity. This year the group received special commendation for outstanding work with the Red Cross.

Current Events Club

Mr. Kostro

This club is perhaps the most intellectual one existing at Jones today. "Their main purpose," as Mr. Kostro elaborates is "to invite politicians, and others with notoriety and interest, to lecture to the members. We also have tours, such as the inspection of the Federal court building recently." The members also debate on current issues, such as the curfew and the Viet Nam war.

They are currently 25 members strong. Mr. Kostro added, "They are involved in anything that pertains to social studies, and the like."

Drama Club

Mrs. Bresnahan

Under the leadership of Mrs. Bresnahan, the Drama Club meets every Thursday. The Drama Club hopes to be part of the Spring Show. Future plans include putting on three one-act plays in a Park District auditorium. There are about twenty members. Officers are: President Tammy Zurba; vice-president: Janice Widuch; secretary: Barbara Zahora; and treasurer Helen de la Cerna

New Art Singers

Mr. Albin

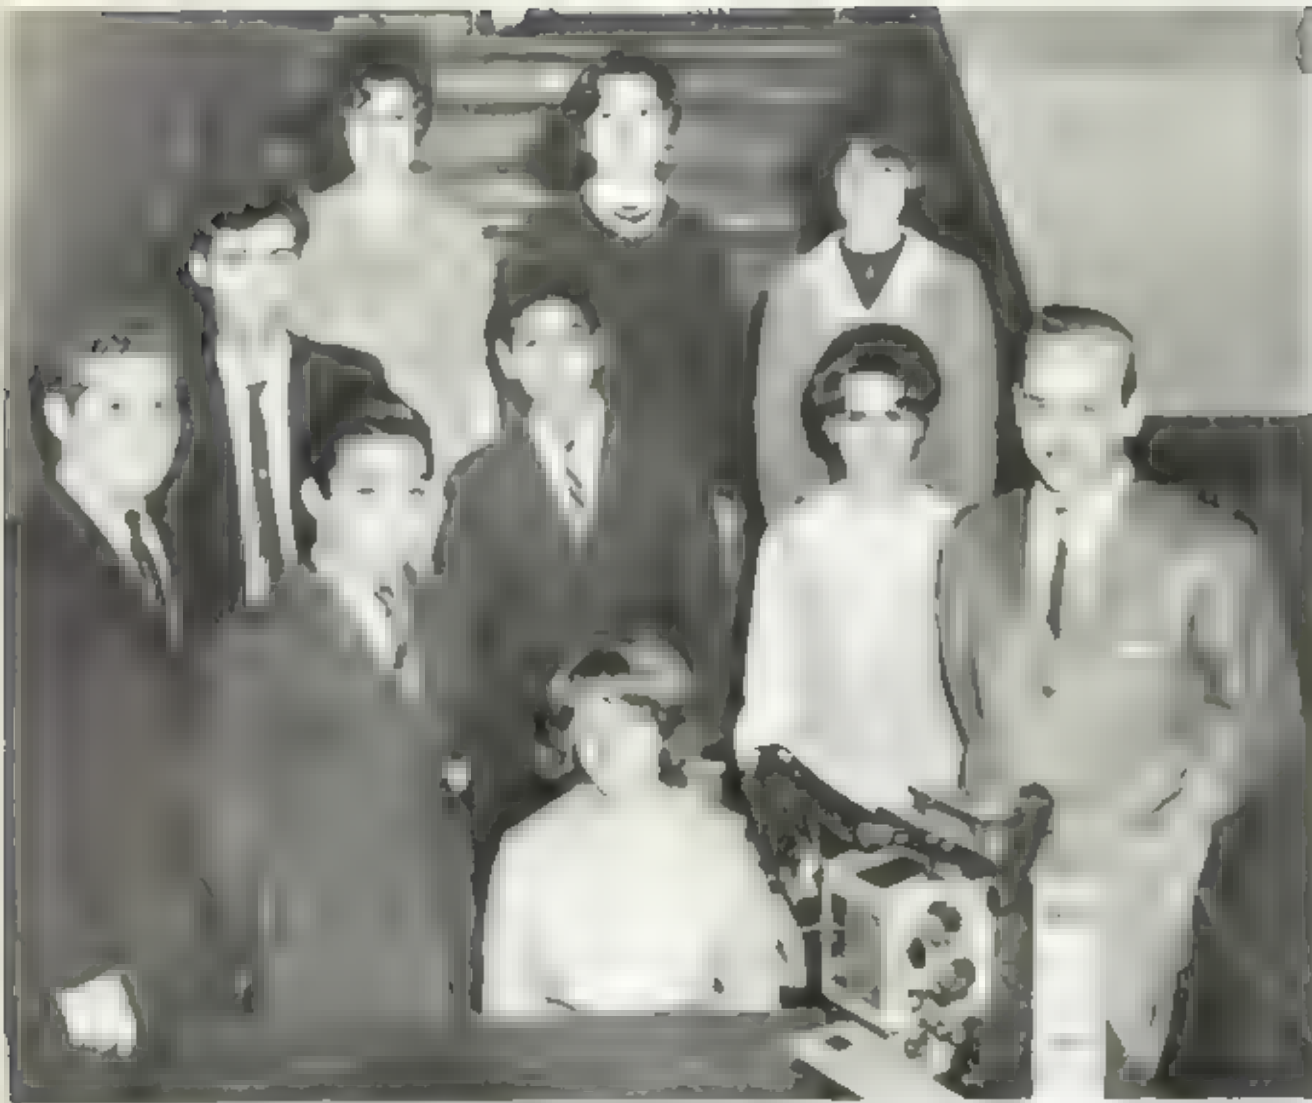

This group is directed by Mr. Albin, and they gather about once a week. As Mr. Albin boasts, "They are a select vocal group who perform a difficult repertoire." The essentials of this club are to be able to sing better than average, and to have a knowledge of reading music. Continues Mr. Albin, "They must have an appreciation for serious music." They have 20 members

Audio-Visual Aides

Mr. Petersen and Mr. Spink

The Audio-Visual Aides learn to operate the movie projector, the filmstrip projector, the overhead projector, and the tape recorder. They help teachers by setting up and operating these machines during their free periods. Their assistance to the faculty is invaluable.

Ronald Lisak, Gerald Perez, Rochelle Wenckowski, and Pete Ociepa
Paul Di Pierro, Louis Lopez, and Mirella Trilla
Jeanne Guida, Arlene Advdan, and Alice Zaragoza

Hostess Club

Miss O'Malley

The members of this group are volunteers who serve refreshments at faculty gatherings and at the monthly meeting of the Jones Business Advisory Council. Good scholastic averages and a pleasing personality are "musts" for the girls in this club, who benefit by practicing the formal social graces and earning Kraft points as well.

Fire Marshals

Mr. O'Neill

The boys act as fire marshals during all fire drills. They are assigned to doors during both the exit and re-entrance to the school. One of the boys is assigned to lead the first group leaving the building by each of the exits. The fire marshals are a great help in the success of the speedy evacuation of the school.

Ronald Lisak, Louis Lopez, Peter Ociepka, and Gerald Perez

Junior Board of Directors

Mr. Carey

The Junior Board of Directors, which meets once a week with Mr. Carey, is composed of class officers. The members, serving as a liaison between the student body and Mr. Carey, discuss problems pertaining to school. Many of Jones' social activities could not succeed without the hard work of these representatives in promoting school spirit and building school morale. They encourage integrity and pride among students by their good example.

Receptionist Club

Miss Heinz

Personality, appearance, poise — these are the traits which the girls belonging to the Receptionist Club possess.

The girls, all 4B and 4A students, make all visitors feel, as if they belong to the Jones family. They are also personal guides to whoever comes to the school.

It is an honor and a privilege to be a receptionist; each one is a representative of the school.

Will They Remember?

This January, 1966 class is the last mid-year class to complete its full two years in the old building. The next mid-year class will graduate from the new auditorium, and the old building will be razed.

These old classrooms hold many memories for many Jones graduates, not just the last class. Though the new building with its very modern, new facilities will bring many back to visit, we also know there will be a nostalgia for those "old" classrooms in the "old" building that will live on in many hearts.

The January Luncheon was held in the Crystal Ballroom of the Blackstone Hotel

SENIOR PROM

June 3, 1966

Cindi Satter, Junior Class President, greets Eric Vane, Dene Petersen, Pat Stanislawski and escorts when they arrived at the prom.

Karen Egan, Dorothy Gulych, and escorts seem to be enjoying themselves at the Windermere East.

“Whispers of a Summer’s Night”...

Happy couples conclude the Grand March

Mr. Carey crowns Dorothy Gulych queen of the prom.

Couples seem to hear "Whispers of a Summer's Night"

SENIOR CLASS LUNCHEON

June 15, 1966

Four year perfect attendance winners are the employers dream girls Cynthia Lynx, Jane Budz, Debra Myczek, Dorothy Gulych, Lisha Trye, Mary Clauson and Herta Puh.

SENIOR CLASS LUNCHEON

On June 15, 1966, the Senior Class Luncheon of the June graduating class was held in the lovely Boulevard Room of the Conrad Hilton Hotel. This year's entertainment theme was ingeniously titled "The Spy Who Came into Jones" or "The Saga of the Jones Bond, Secret Agent 607."

Mary Szatkowski, Roberta LaHay, Paulette Klak, and Geraldine Dobosz are representative of the many lovely ladies present

Forrest seniors chat before the luncheon begins.

Seniors recreate the freezing groundbreaking afternoon they remember

Nineteen students earned trophies for two-year perfect attendance

Marcia Gierut and Nancy Koziel re-live make-up time before a Jones show

Mr Carey addresses the seniors one of the last times

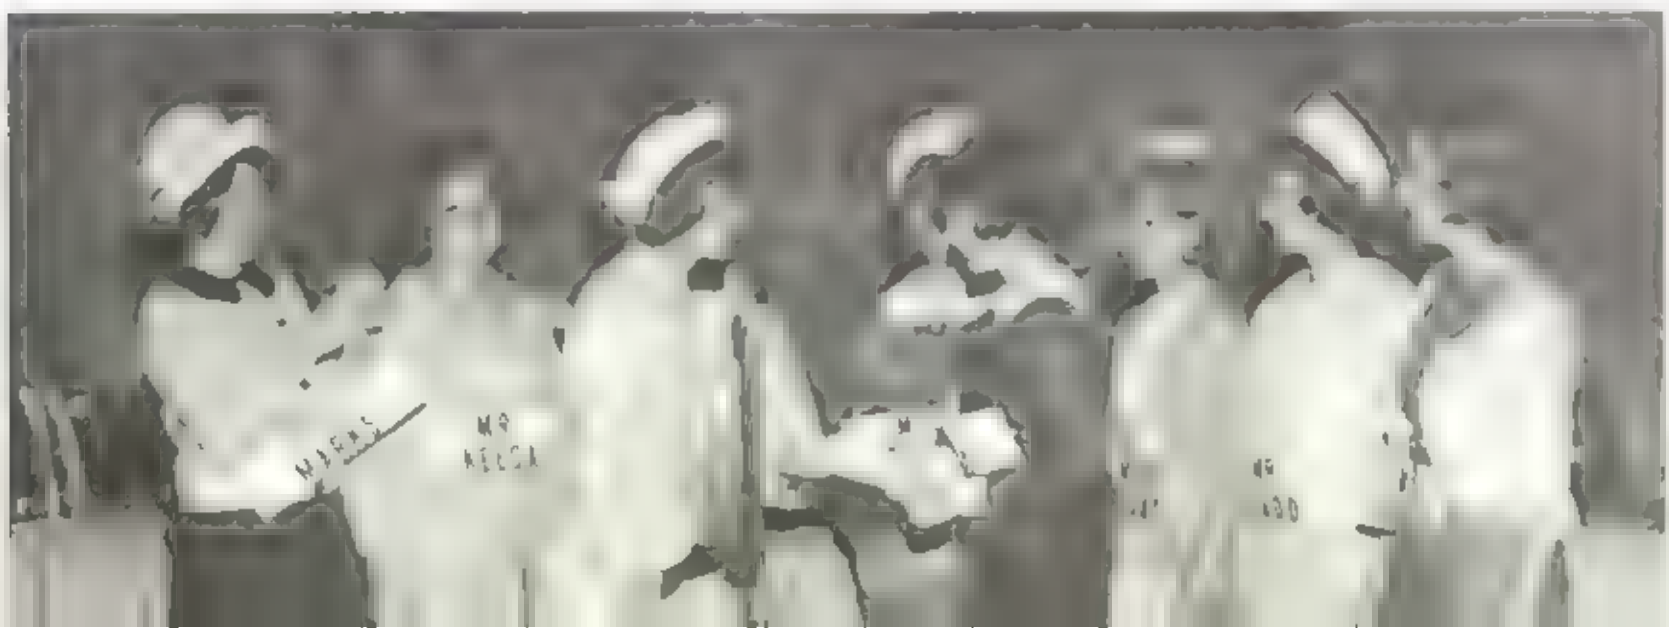

Phyllis Nowara and Valerie Levin do "A Visit to the Matron"

Frances Szumanski and Connie Kalash Graduate on Friday

The Jones faculty is spoofed at a mock teachers' meeting

Mr. Carey and Sheila Hope, 4A class president, congratulate Queen Carol Rutherford.

Carolyn Pedigo and escort enjoy the dance.

November 19, 1965, will always hold its memories, for it was the night of the Fall Dance — IF THE SLIPPER FITS. The dance was held at the M & M Club of the Merchandise Mart. Music was provided by Chuck Cavallo and orchestra.

Connie Krause captivates all with her songs.

The tension rises as Sheila Hope, Barbara Hancock, and Joyce Noorlag and Chuck Cavallo, band leader, in choosing the queen and her court.

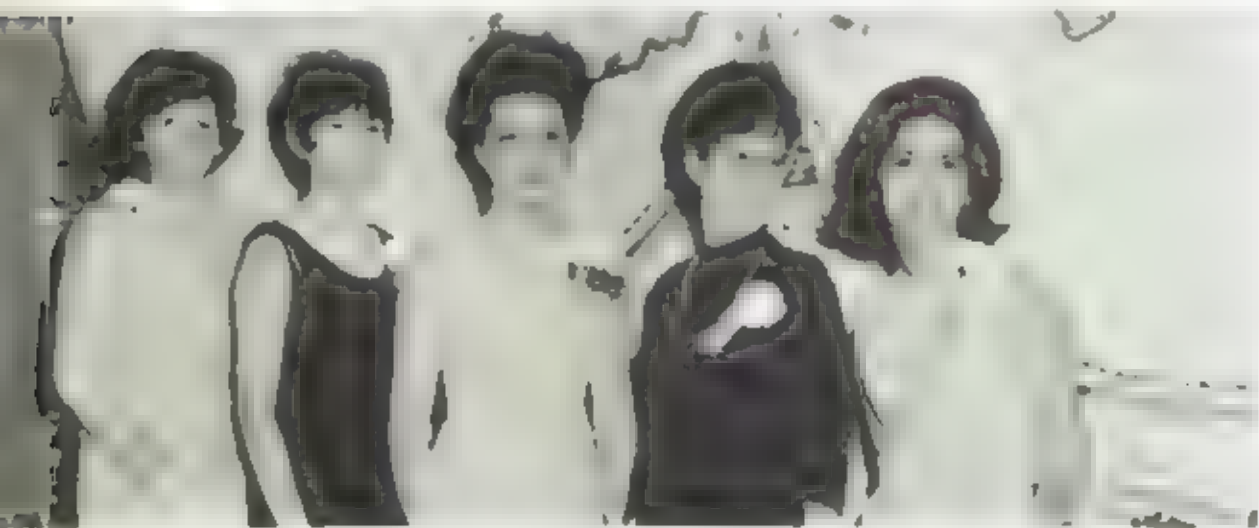

SPRING DANCE

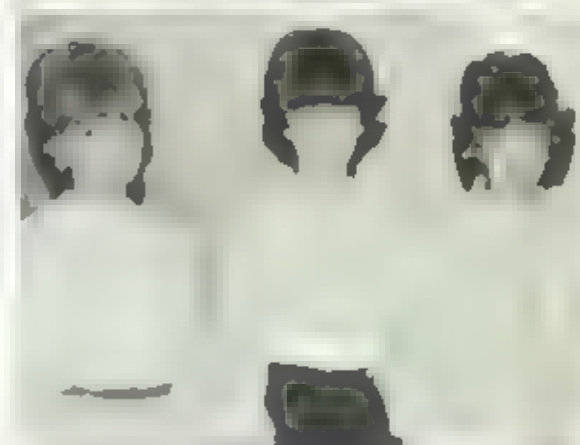

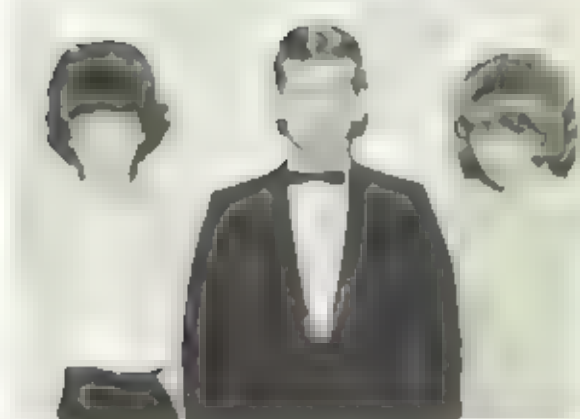

Mr. Carey crowns Sharon Wild, Queen of the dance

March 11, 1966. Jonesites gathered at the M & M Club again for their Spring Dance and the music of Mr. Cavallo

Busy hostesses were Marlene Niefanger, Mary Szatkowski, Arlene Advan, Jeanne Guida, and Sarah Bernal

Shirley Dees and Amparo Alvarez and escorts were the waltz contest winners

SENIOR MEMORIES

On the senior board in the Rose Room, Chris Greco records the number of days remaining to graduation, a traditional senior custom

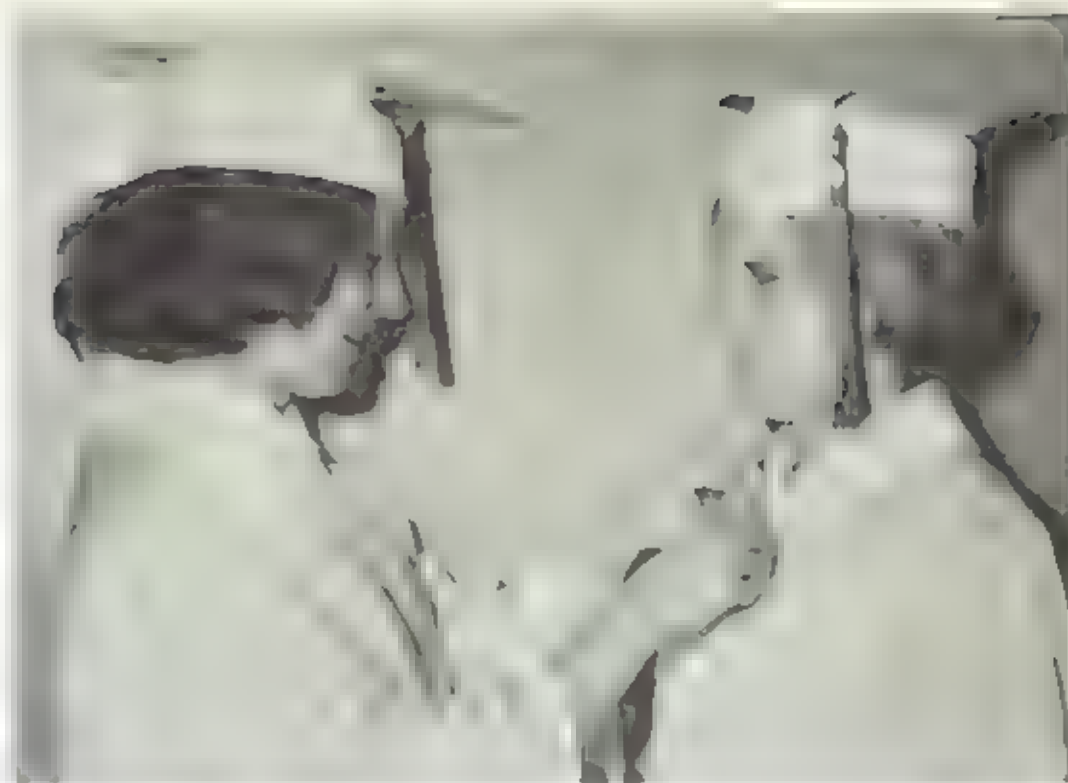

A long to be remembered happy weekend at the Woodsch Dude Ranch in Wisconsin brings back memories of a closely knit highly spirited June senior class

GRADUATION

June, 1966

June 17, 1966, marked the 54th and largest graduating exercises at Jones Commercial High School. Ceremonies for the 241 graduates were held at Lane Technical High School Auditorium

Do You Remember?

the bulletin board?
 the USO Cake Days?
 the birthday cake?
 the cold weather?
 the cakes in the gym?
 the hot soup?
 it all happened in 1965-66
